

SARAH STEWART

Sarah Stewart is a leading UK claimant lawyer and has been a supervising partner of the Aviation team at Stewarts since 2007. She specialises in aviation disputes resulting from death or injury, often involving jurisdictional arguments, issues of foreign law and the application of international conventions. Sarah qualified as a solicitor in England & Wales in 1997 and spent five years practising in personal injury law before joining Stewarts in 2002.

Sarah has acted in many prominent aviation cases and acted for the claimant in the landmark case of Rogers v Hoyle [2014] EWCA Civ 257 [2014] 3 WLR 148, [2014] 3 All ER 550, which considered the admissibility of air safety reports in UK civil proceedings. In January 2023 she featured as Lawyer of the Week in The Times for her work representing families of the victims of the Shoreham Airshow disaster throughout the coroner's inquest which concluded on 20 December 2022 with a finding of unlawful killing.

Sarah is a visiting lecturer at Cranfield University for their MSc in Aviation Safety. She speaks at events hosted by the Royal Aeronautical Society, the Association of Personal Injury Lawyers and the European Air Association (EALA), and regularly comments on radio and TV.
