

Alice Loader

Alice is a rehabilitation case manager who specialises in Anglo French cases. She aims to achieve the best possible outcomes for her clients in terms of maximising their independence and improving their quality of life.

Having qualified as an occupational therapist from Oxford Brookes University in 1994, Alice began her career in the National Health Service in the UK where she gained a strong foundational experience across a variety of clinical settings including neurology, orthopaedics, psychiatry and paediatrics.

In 2008, she gained her certification to enable her to work as a state registered ergothérapeute (occupational therapist) in France where she practiced in both the state and private sectors over the next seven years.

On returning to the UK, she offered her services as an independent occupational therapist in private practice. An opportunity then presented itself - via a UK case management company - to carry out a full 'Immediate Needs Assessment' for a client who had sustained a serious personal injury in the UK and had been repatriated to France. Given her experience, she was ideally placed to proceed to case manage the rehabilitation of this client on behalf of the stakeholders.

Today she manages a full caseload of clients with catastrophic injury, including spinal injury, brain injury and amputation, due to accident or medical negligence. Her clients are exclusively cross border cases, who were injured either in the UK or in France and have since been repatriated or who wish to return to France.

Alice works closely with all stakeholders - the client and their entourage, health and care teams, legal team and the funding parties and any other agencies involved.
